ARCHITECTURAL DETAIL

Above the box office and retail space is a double volume reception room flanking Queen Street. This fully glazed space overlooks the Osgoode Hall gardens and is equipped with a catering kitchen, coat storage and washrooms and served directly by elevator from the underground parking. It is intended for both opera and ballet patrons and for rental for other events.

The Henry N. R. Jackman Lounge features the same point loaded insulated glass system employed in the Isadore and Rosalie Sharp City Room, flooding the space with natural light. Clerestory windows on one side of the room allow patrons to see into the Rehearsal Room below.

TECHNICAL INFORMATION

Located on the second floor of the building, this entertainment and meeting room runs along Queen Street, and features views of the street and neighbouring Osgoode Hall. Internal windows overlook the Rehearsal Room. The Henry N. R. Jackman Lounge is entered through double glazed doors. It has its own coat check and washrooms. There are tall windows on the north side of the room with electrically operated blinds. The room does not have a full blackout. There are bars at the end of each room, and separate food preparation areas.

SEATING

This rehearsal room has no dedicated seating arrangements. It does have its own loose furniture and comfortable seating. Adjacent to the window, fixed benches run along the north side of the room.

AREA

The room is 20 ft. wide and 139 ft. long. It can be divided into two spaces: one 46 ft. in length and one 91 ft. in length. The ceiling panels are 22 ft. above the floor. The floor is carpeted.

POWER SUPPLIES

Various 110v – 15a receptacles around the room

Separate "technical" power for sound
